MR. BUCKNER WOODFORD, SR. DIES SUDDENLY AT PARIS

Mr. Buckner Woodford, Sr., one of the best known men in Bourbon county, died last Wednesday morning at the age of seventy years, after a long illness. Although he had been in bad health for some time, his death was unexpected.

For many years he had been president of the Bourbon Bank & Trust Company and was a leading man in all public movements in that county. He was a Confederate veteran.

Mr. Woodford's death was due to heart failure, caused by asthma. He is survived by four children, Mrs. Thomas Henry Clay, Jr., Buckner Woodford, Jr., John Woodford and Samuel Woodford, of Bourbon county.

Four brothers and two sisters also survive. They are Catesby and Ben Woodford, of Bourbon county; John T. Woodford, of Montgomery county, and Henry M. Woodford, of Boardman, Florida, and Mrs. E. S. Spears, and Mrs. W. L. Yerkes, of Paris.

Mr. Woodford had been a sufferer for a number of months with a complication of diseases, but Tuesday morning was so far improved as to be able to take a short drive about the city.

Through the Woodford, Buckner and Clay families he had large and influential connections throughout the entire State. Mr. Woodford, with his brother, Ben Woodford, was largely interested in the raising of running horses, being indirectly connected with Col. E. F. Clay and Catesby Woodford, owner of the well-known Runnymede stud. Mr. Woodford at an early age married Miss Brooks, daughter of Thomas Brooks, a wealthy farmer, of Bourbon county. She preceded him to the grave about five years ago.

The many friends of Mr. John T. Woodford, of this county, join us in extending sympathy in the hour of his grief.

STATUTE IS CONSTRUED

By Attorney General Relative to Shipments of Liquor Into Dry Territory.

The statute which permits the shipment of whiskey into dry territory, requires the package to contain the name and address of the consignor and consignee and certain other information, including the purpose for which it is to be used, that is, whether for personal, family, medicinal, mechanical, chemical, scientific or sacramental use and a penalty is provided for false labeling same.

A record of all shipments is kept, which is open to public inspection and many people not wanting to be known as receiving whiskey, are said to have been shipping it in the name of some one else, generally, negroes.

This statute has never been passed upon by the Court of Appeals, but County Attorney E. W. Senff contends that it is a clear violation of the law to receive a package marked for "personal use," if as a matter of fact the consignee is merely receiving it for some one else. Recently he submitted the question to the Attorney General at Frankfort and was informed by him that "the position taken by you is correct." Last week warrants were issued from the county court for John Curtis Owings and Henry Wheatley, negroes, who admit having received for whiskey marked for "personal use," which really belonged to another and they were remanded to jail in default of bail to await the action of the grand jury.

The authorities are determined that no whiskey shall be sold here and that none shall be shipped here, except such shipments as comply strictly with the law.

A CARD

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Aug. 16, 1915.
To the Democratic Voters Of The Twenty-First Judicial District:
I take this method of expressing my undying gratitude to those of you who supported me in the recent primary election, and at the same time to assure those who opposed me that I entertain no ill will toward them. Although the result of the election is a disappointment to me, I am neither disheartened nor disgruntled, and shall continue in the future, as I have in the past, to give all Democratic nominees my unqualified support.

Very sincerely,
W. B. WHITE.

Tinning and Roofing.

I am prepared to do tinning and roofing of all kinds in a prompt and satisfactory manner and at prices that are most reasonable. Figure with me if you want the best at the lowest possible price.

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR

The Chautauqua Circle had a call meeting at the home of the President, Miss Elizabeth Lockridge, last Wednesday afternoon to meet Dr. Jurian H. v. d. Shrender, of Transvaal, United South Africa. Dr. Shrender is of Dutch and English descent and a brilliant and high-toned gentleman. His address was received with enthusiasm and appreciation. "America" and "Old Kentucky Home" were sung by the members present. The spacious balls, parlors and porches were suggestive of patriotism. American flags and the color scheme of red, white and blue were carried out in decorations. The guests were served with delicious refreshments. Dr. Shrender is in this country in the interest of Kentucky horses, having been sent by his government, and is the guest of a chautauquan, Mrs. James E. Gay and her brother, Mr. J. Gano Johnson.

IMPROVING PROPERTY

Vanarsdell & Co. have finished improving their store with a new coat of paint inside and out and repapering same.

Hazelrigg & Son have also improved the appearance of their store with a coat of paint and new paper throughout.

The store of H. G. Enoch is also being improved with a coat of paint. Quite extensive improvements are being made at the dry goods store of Mr. J. H. Keller. A large balcony is being erected which will be used for displaying ladies' suits, cloaks, dresses, etc. A portion of the balcony will be used for an office and the cashier system will be installed. The second floor will be used as a rug and carpet department and is also undergoing improvements. Mr. Keller has just returned from New York where he purchased heavily for his fall trade.

HAY RIDE

Miss Adelaide Gay gave a delightful hay ride last Thursday evening in honor of Miss Murry Crail. The following young ladies and gentlemen composed the party:

Misses Ann Laura Ratliff, Alexine Bigstaff, Lorraine Catlin, Ida Heath Jones, Freddie Mae Driggers, Mary Crail, Carolyn Bourne, Mary Dean, Adelaide Gay and Bernice Moore; Messrs. Philip Greene, William Tip-ton, James Bigstaff, Morris Ramsey, Frank Robbins, Russell Greene, Fred Allen Ramsey, Henry L. Jones, Harold Greene and French Anderson, of this city and county, and Messrs. Stoddard Young, Herbert Sledd and Edwin Thomas, of North Middletown.

The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Jas. E. Gay.

ENGAGES FINE SINGER

The management of The Tab Theatre has advised us that they have engaged for Friday and Saturday nights, beginning with Friday night of this week, Mrs. Margaret Foster Acosta, the well-known vocalist, of Lexington. Mrs. Acosta possesses a remarkable soprano voice of the rarest quality. She is known to many people in this section having sung at several of the churches when visiting friends here. The engagement of Mrs. Acosta will prove a splendid drawing card for The Tab Theatre and the music lovers will be given a rare treat by this gifted lady.

Nothing too good for our customers. Sanitary Meat Market.

PREWITT REUNION

The annual reunion of the Prewitt family will be held at the R. B. Young place on the Maysville pike, on Thursday, August 26th. The Prewitt family is one of the largest in the State and a large number meet each year.

POLICEMAN KILLS NEGRO

Policemen of Winchester Forced to Kill Negro Who Attempts to Escape Arrest.

Policemen John Ballard and W. R. Strode, of Winchester, received a telegram Monday night to keep a lookout for two negroes who had robbed a man and thrown him from a train near Corbin. The two officers stationed themselves near the depot and early Tuesday morning saw two negroes leave a freight train and when the officers called to them to surrender both negroes started to run and the officers opened fire upon them, killing one instantly and wounding the other one, but it is thought he will recover.

At the coroner's inquest Tuesday morning the bullet was taken from the dead negro's body and found to be the same calibre used by officer Ballard. The jury immediately exonerated Ballard.

The shooting occurred about five o'clock.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

The regular Annual Sunday School Convention for Montgomery County will be held at the Christian church at Camargo on Sunday, September 5, 1915, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Every Sunday School in this county is urged to have representatives present, and all representatives are invited to take part in the discussions that will be had.

In the evening of the same day the Sunday School Mass Meeting will be held at the Presbyterian church in Mt. Sterling. Rev. George A. Joplin will be present at both these meetings. All persons interested in Sunday School work are earnestly requested to attend these meetings and give Brother Joplin and his associates a warm welcome and an attentive hearing. 8-2t.

DIES AT HAZEL GREEN

Prominent Churchman Dies at His Home in Wolfe County From Heart Failure.

Hon. W. O. Mize, former Senator in the Kentucky Legislature from his district, churchman, philanthropist and philosopher, died at Hazel Green, last Friday night from heart failure after a brief illness. He had been ill of a complication of ailments for perhaps two weeks and had planned to leave for the South when he had slightly recuperated. Dr. F. H. Clarke, of Lexington, who arrived in the afternoon, attended him, but he was beyond aid and death occurred at 8 o'clock. He was 70 years old.

Senator Mize is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lula Cockrell Mize, and an only son, Carl Mize. He was accounted one of the wealthiest men in Wolfe county and the mountains and was one of the founders of Hazel Green Academy, for many years the foremost educational institution in the mountains.

Funeral services were held Monday, the Rev. Thomas McGarvey, principal of Hazel Green Academy, officiating.

Telegrams of condolence were received from all sections of the country, including one from Mrs. Anna Atwater, president of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, and many other friends.

Senator Mize was born in Clark county, near the mouth of Four Mile creek, and is related to the Trimble family, of this county.

DOING NICELY

Friends of Judge Allie W. Young in this city will be pleased to learn that his young son who was operated on for appendicitis at Louisville last week at St. Joseph's Infirmary is getting along nicely and is rapidly recovering.

COMING BACK HOME

Mr. S. D. Hall, who last week sold his farm in Fayette county on which he has been living, will soon return to this county and will move to his farm near Sideview. We are glad to welcome him to old Montgomery again.

Drink Carlsbad Spring Water, of Dry Ridge, Ky., for rheumatism, kidney, stomach and liver troubles. For sale at Greenwade's Store.

SYNOPSIS.

Professor Stilliter, psychologist, and Gordon Barclay, millionaire, plan to preach to the world the gospel of efficiency through a young and beautiful woman who shall believe that she is a heaven-sent messenger. They kidnap the orphaned little Amesbury girl, playmate of Tommy Steele, and conceal her in a cavern, in care of a woman, to be molded to their plan as she grows up. Fifteen years elapse. Tommy is adopted by Barclay, but loses his heirship and on a hunting trip discovers Celestia. Stilliter takes Celestia to New York.

FIFTH INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER XI.

Doctor Sargent turned somewhat impatiently, but on perceiving that Tommy belonged to the world of wealth and fashion, and was not a reporter, his manner changed to one of brusque courtesy.

"I've only just discovered," said Tommy, "that Celestia—I am not at liberty to tell you her real name (he wasn't for the simple reason that he didn't know what it was)—is being held here until her friends can be discovered. I am one of her friends and I have come to take her away."

"I have no authority to turn her over to you. Don't misunderstand me, but I don't even know who you are."

"I can't tell you who she is," said Tommy, "it wouldn't be right. But I'm Thomas Barclay, and I can really give very satisfactory references if I have to."

Doctor Sargent smiled now in a really friendly manner.

"You don't have to," he said, "I know you—I know Mr. Barclay very well indeed, and still as long as Stilliter brought her here, and told me to keep her until he sent for her, I don't really see how I can let you take her away. Of course, I know she would be in good hands—why not wait till I can communicate with Stilliter?"

"I have no use for him," said Tommy, "any more than he has for me. If you let Celestia go with me he will probably be angry, and yet the rights of the matter are entirely on my side."

"I don't wish to be indiscreet, but is she a relative of yours?"

There was a good deal of Irish in Tommy's smile. And his eyes twinkled brightly as he said:

"Not yet."

"Not yet? I don't think I quite understand."

"Why," said Tommy, "it's very simple. I am engaged to her."

If he had been the most truthful young man in the world he might have said: "I am engaged to her, but she isn't engaged to me."

Still for a moment Doctor Sargent hesitated. Then he smiled and said: "After all, she is not under detention. She's as sane as I am except for the hallucinations about a heavenly origin, and if you want to take her away and if she wants to go with you I have no right to interfere. Just wait a moment, will you?"

In a few minutes he returned with Celestia. She had been very angry with Tommy because he had not come out of the water to rescue her from Stilliter, but the sight of him now dissipated all that remained of her wrath. She took two steps toward him, holding out both hands. And she exclaimed: "Oh, Tommy! I'm so glad. You did come, didn't you?"

"Just as quickly as ever I could," said Tommy.

Tommy put her into a taxicab and they drove up town, Celestia asking a hundred questions a minute about everything which interested her.

"Celestia," he said suddenly, "at first the doctor didn't want to give you up, and I'm afraid I told him a white lie." The young man blushed as he spoke, "I told him I was engaged to you, and, of course, he believes that you are engaged to me. And, of course, you aren't, unless you want to be."

"Are you engaged to me?" she exclaimed.

"Yes," said Tommy, "it happened suddenly, on the island. I'm engaged to you for always."

It began to look as if she would have to spend the rest of her life in the taxicab. No hotel would take her in.

Finally it occurred to him to try his friends. Surely, he thought, Mary Blackstone will take her in, if I ask her to, for old time's sake. So he told the driver to drive to Senator Blackstone's residence.

Leaving Celestia in the cab, Tommy learned that Mary Blackstone was at home, and would see him, and he hurried upstairs to the little sitting room. He had not counted on finding Fitch with her.

Mary greeted Tommy with a kind of cool cheerfulness, which did not make him in the least unhappy, and then she spoke to Fitch with an intimate caressing tone of voice, which instead of making Tommy frantically jealous, only caused him to smile inwardly. Then, point blank, she asked Tommy if he had called because he had nothing better to do, or for some special reason, and then, of course, Tommy had to make his appeal for Celestia. "Tommy," said Mary, when he had finished, "you grow more chiv-alous every day. And I can see how this wild girl caught in the Adirondack mountains appeals to all that is noble in you. But really—she raised her eyebrows and smiled with irritating superiority.

"But in simple language," she went on, "what you say about her amounts to this: 'She is good-looking, she is out of her mind, and she doesn't wear enough clothes.'"

Fitch overheard and laughed. "Don't," said Tommy, "don't condemn her out of my clumsy words. Please see her, Mary. You can't help wanting to help her. And if you won't help her, there's no other girl I can go to. Take her in for tonight, won't you. Just for old time's sake."

Mary appealed to Fitch. "What ought I to do?" she asked.

Fitch came forward with a judicial manner. "I congratulate you, Tommy," he said, with a sort of a man-of-the-world ("you dog, you dog!") tone of voice. "She stuck her head out of the cab window just now to speak to a new-boy, and what you say about her looks is all too true. But why a show-girl should be found running loose in the Adirondacks in her show-girl costume I don't know. Unless somebody took her there and—cast her off. Suppose I give you a note to a manager?"

"I'm not going to get angry if I can help it," said Tommy. "I know it's a queer story, but please be a little careful."

Meanwhile Mary had gone to the window, had caught a glimpse of Celestia, and felt her heart fall with rage and jealousy.

"My dear Tommy Barclay," she said sweetly, "the proper place for that ravishingly beautiful young creature is the nearest police station."

Tommy drew a long breath to quiet his anger. Then he said gravely: "I'm always wrong about everything. Why, Mary, I always thought that you had a heart, charity and common sense. And I was even wrong about that."

"I'll Take Care of You, Dear."

And he turned upon his heel and left the room.

It was getting dark, and something had to be done quickly.

"Celestia," said Tommy, as he entered the cab, "I'm going to try my father. We've had a sort of row, but we are very fond of each other, and we're a dear old housekeeper, and she'll look after you."

Celestia was silent for a few moments. Then in a small voice she said: "Nobody wants me. I'm a terrible trouble to you. Your father won't take me in. I know he won't. And—I know that I wouldn't be happy when I turned into a human being. They told me I wouldn't. But I didn't know how unhappy and lonely I'd have to be."

Tommy, deeply touched, suddenly took her in his arms and kissed her. For a moment she lay against him, and her lips moved against his. Then she freed herself with sudden energy, and exclaimed: "I mustn't—I mustn't."

"Why mustn't you, Celestia, dear?" "Just because I want to so much, so I know I mustn't."

But Barclay, notified by Stilliter of Celestia's escape with Tommy, was only too anxious to detain her until she could once more be turned over to the professor's guardianship.

So when Tommy, looking very manly, told his father about Celestia, that one said at once: "Poor thing—poor child—of course we must take her in, take her in first and think afterward."

"God bless you for a brick," cried Tommy, and he dashed off.

In less than a minute he returned, greatly agitated. She's gone," he cried.

Visions of certain New York pitfalls flashed through Barclay's mind. "Tommy," he said, "do what you can to find her, and bring her here. I'll look after the police end."

CHAPTER XIV.

What had happened was simply this: The moment Tommy had entered his father's house Celestia had leaned from the cab window and told the driver to drive on. Why? Because she thought she was a trouble to him? No. It was because when his arms had been around her and he had kissed her and she had kissed him back, almost all thought of her heavenly mission to this earth had been wiped from her mind, and she felt that the gates of heaven were closed against her return. They had trusted her. And she mustn't fall them.

The cab had stopped and the driver was speaking to her through the window.

"This will do," she said, and she got out. "Thank you very much," and then, her head bare, feet showing below Tommy's raincoat, she started to walk away.

"Hold on, there," bellowed the driver, "how about my fare?"

"Oh," said Celestia, turning meekly. The driver pointed to his meter.

"Sixteen dollars and forty-eight cents," he said, with a tone of finality.

Celestia stood helpless and bewildered.

"But I have no money," she said.

"You haven't, haven't you?"

The driver leaped threateningly from his box, and a crowd began to gather. Through this crowd a strong, loud-voiced, well-dressed middle-aged woman came pushing and struggling.

She caught Celestia by the arm and forced her back toward the cab, the door of which was still open.

"I'll take care of you, dear," she said. "In with you."

To the driver she gave an address in a voice which none but him heard, and a moment later, amid jeers and murmurs of pity, Celestia was once more whirling through the streets of New York.

CHAPTER XV.

"Freddie the Ferret" was a remarkable young man. His real name was Frederick Appleton Douglas—and he came of good Scotch-American stock. If he had been bright and had he might have been a gangster. But he wasn't bright and he wasn't bad. He was neither a half-wit, nor a whole wit, and he had almost as much moral sense as a cat. That is to say, he had none.

His habitual companions, however, were evil. For many such persons in the city had discovered that on occasion Freddie could be tremendously useful. To begin with, his luck distinguished him as much as brains and talent could have done. Some people are always finding four-leafed clovers. Freddie's gift, though he had never seen a clover patch or lived in clover, was of that sort. If Freddie went through a rubbish heap he always found something of value.

The police knew him well. And although he was often mixed up in reprehensible matters, they were careful not to arrest him, because he was often so useful to them, and they knew that it heart he was good-natured and not responsible for the occasional harm that he did.

Freddie's reputation with the police began when he was quite a small boy. Sergeant Rafferty, tall and very serious looking, encountered him one day and said:

"Say, Bub, have you seen a man round here with one nostril bigger than the other and a bit of his left ear missing?"

"Sure," said Freddie; "you mean Pete the Polaxe."

"Where?" said Rafferty. "He's shot a man up and he's wanted."

"I seen him," said Freddie, "not five minutes ago. He give me a dime to say I didn't."

"Where'd you see him, boy?"

"He was goin' into O'Gorman's ice cream parlor with Nell the Flinger, famly entrance."

"If you've spoken the truth," said Rafferty, "I'll give you a dollar."

Ten minutes later the arrest was made and Freddie's reputation was established.

Flannerman's barroom was Freddie's headquarters. Sometimes the habitues amused themselves by getting him drunk, but not often, for they were poor men, and even a mild jag costs money. One day the proprietor tapped Freddie on the shoulder and told him he was wanted on the phone.

"Yes, this is Freddie, all right."

"This is Mrs. Baxter."

"Hope you're well, Mrs. Baxter."

"Same to you, Freddie. I bin trying to find Sweetzer all over town. Can you find him?"

"Sure; what'll I tell him?"

"You say to him that Mrs. Baxter says to say she's got a pipplin for him."

"What for?"

"Why for about a dollar, Freddie, if you will bring him round quick."

As Freddie the Ferret left Flannerman's, it was his luck to run into

"No Hotel Would Take Her In!"

Sweetzer, who was on the point of entering.

Sweetzer had the appearance of a ward politician.

"Bin hunting you all over town," said Freddie.

"What for?"

"Mrs. Baxter says to say she's got a pipplin for you."

They set off at once in the direction of Mrs. Baxter's "Market."

CHAPTER XVI.

Although she had as yet done nothing that was not helpful or kind, there was something about Mrs. Baxter that rang false, and the house in which she lived was a strange place.

Mrs. Baxter's sitting room and office was at the back of the house up one flight of stairs. And here, summoned downstairs by a neat looking colored maid, she left Celestia to herself for a while.

Sweetzer and Freddie were in the front parlor. Mrs. Baxter swept in upon them with an important air of mystery.

"Got the real thing this time, have you?" asked Sweetzer.

"You just bet I have," said Mrs. Baxter.

"When you've seen her all I'll have to do will be to name the sum; just step upstairs, Billy; and you, too, Freddie, if you'd like to have a peep at the real thing."

"Usual price?" asked Sweetzer.

"Yep. But go quiet. She's got ears like a lynx, and she can see plumb through paint and canvas."

The men followed Mrs. Baxter on tiptoe.

Just before they came to the door of Mrs. Baxter's office Sweetzer and Freddie ducked off into what appeared to be a dark closet and pulled the door to after them; while Mrs. Baxter, with a great bustling, noisy cheerfulness rejoined Celestia.

"You're looking at my pictures, aren't you, dear?" she said. "I love beauty, I love nature. Now that girl with her hands to her hair, ain't she just too cute and graceful for anything?"

In moving from one picture to another Celestia unconsciously assumed many lovely attitudes herself. Once she lifted her hands to her hair; several times she smiled back at girls who appeared to be smiling at her. And at last she stood with her hands loosely caught behind her and looked up at the masterpiece of Mrs. Baxter's collection.

As it wasn't bad at all. Some young fellow with a genuine talent had made it. If he had also succeeded in making a name for himself the picture would have been worth a good deal of money; but, as Mrs. Baxter explained, "poor Allison had drank and doped himself to death. And I took this over," she said, "in lieu of money that he owed me. It's called 'The Peacock Girl.'"

"The Peacock Girl" was as delicately and prettily made as an apple blossom. And she was as sweet and rosy, and not a bit proud of having no clothes on like the girls in the other picture, or brazen or ashamed. She strolled straight toward you. And in front of her and at both sides and behind her all the way to the rim of the world were peacocks with their tails spread. The coloring was gorgeous and the eyes in the peacocks' tails were like thousands of bright jewels. But the eyes of the peacock girl were so frank and sweet, that after a glance at the rest of the composition Celestia could look at nothing else.

Not so Mrs. Baxter, standing behind Celestia and a little to one side. She looked steadily at two of the eyes in the tail of the leading peacock. In those two eyes she read rapturous approval. So she held up one finger, and then with that same finger traced three circles in the air.

At that the eyes in the peacock's tail tried to look obdurate and strong. Mrs. Baxter shrugged her shoulders. Then the eyes winked slowly three times, and Mrs. Baxter, forgetful of everything but her triumph, laughed aloud.

Celestia turned to her with inquiring eyes. She did not know that she had just been sold for a thousand dollars by someone who did not own her to someone whom she had never seen.

"You must be tired standing, dearie," said Mrs. Baxter, "and hungry and thirsty, too. What'll you drink—a glass of wine?"

"Water, please."

"That's nicer, water with a dash of orange juice. You wait here and I'll see to it myself."

Once more Mrs. Baxter hurried downstairs. Once more she found Sweetzer and Freddie in the front parlor.

"I'll send for her in an hour," said Sweetzer; "see that she's ready."

"You mean asleep?"

I mean more. Put her into something less audible than that flim-flam white thing she's got on."

"She's going to have a glass of water with a little orange juice in it and a little dash of something else. I guess she'll be all ready when you send. It's early, though. How'll you get her out of the house?"

"As usual," said Sweetzer, "in a big trunk."

"There's one thing more."

Eye met eye. And after a little Sweetzer's eyes fell and he drew from his inside pocket an enormous roll of dirty bills of large denominations. Ten bills of a hundred dollars each passed very slowly and with much thumb licking from him to Mrs. Baxter.

CHAPTER XVII.

Had Mrs. Baxter no compunction whatever? Yes. But she was only doing as she had once been done by. She had to live, or she felt that she had to; and she had hardened her heart to mercy and self-sacrifice. Still, her hands shook as she carried the orangeade and the sandwiches up to Celestia, and her voice shook as she said:

"There, dearie, eat, drink and be merry."

Celestia ate hungrily and drank thirstily. And presently she said that she felt sleepy and could hardly keep her eyes open.

"It ain't anywhere near bedtime," said Mrs. Baxter. "You just curl up on my sofa and take forty winks."

Sleeping she looked more beautiful than a maiden of this earth.

"My God! My God!" exclaimed Mrs. Baxter, ain't she beautiful? And to think that she has to be food for swine."

A strong emotion seized Mrs. Baxter. It was fear, pity and remorse. "No use crying over spilled milk," she murmured. "And now to change her into a traveling dress."

She left the room hurriedly and came back with all that was necessary to change Celestia from a Greek goddess to an American girl.

Suspended from Celestia's neck by a narrow ribbon, was the smallest, oddest, oddest little rag doll in the world.

I do not know what silent chords in the wicked old woman's heart were touched by the sight of that doll. I only know that she gave a kind of a howl of grief, and then she began to say in a kind of hurried sing-song: "Must hurry—must hurry—must hurry."

She found the strength to half carry, half drag Celestia down the front stairs and to half lift, half tumble her into a huge trunk that almost blocked the front hall. Before she closed and locked the trunk, she flung into it the ten one hundred dollar bills. And then she tried to compose herself against Sweetzer's arrival.

He was punctual to the minute. Mrs. Baxter opened the front door herself. Beyond Sweetzer, drawn up at the curb, she could see the express wagon and the trusted porters that he had brought with him.

"Everything all right?" he whispered.

Mrs. Baxter closed the door.

"Sweetzer," she said, "she's gone." When I went back with the orangeade she was gone. She must have smelt a rat, Sweetzer. She must have seen your eyes in the peacock's tail. See, I had everything ready; here's the trunk waiting for her.

Sweetzer looked at the trunk. He could think of nothing better to do.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Celestia woke neither sick nor dazed; but cool-minded and rested, in a broad, cool bed, it was Mrs. Baxter's entrance on tiptoe that had waked her. Mrs. Baxter carried a tray upon which was an orange, coffee and rolls.

"You've had a long sleep, dearie. How do you feel?"

"Very well and happy, thank you." When you've had your breakfast you'll have to go away. I can't keep you here; it wouldn't be right. It wouldn't be safe."

Mrs. Baxter burst into sudden tears at Celestia's departure.

"I may never see you again. But I'll never forget you—oh, I've been a wicked woman; but I'll try not to be wicked any more—and it's you that done it."

And she thrust the bills which Sweetzer had given her into Celestia's hands.

"I came from heaven to help you," said Celestia simply. "Good-by and God bless you."

Her eyes bright as stars she went out into the early sunshine, and walked slowly in an easterly direction, her head high and the hand of jewels gleaming brightly across her brow.

By the time she had passed under the first lines of elevated tracks a crowd had collected about her. They did not show her any disrespect at first perhaps because she had such a royal look of self-sufficiency. But as the crowd increased, persons in its outskirts who could not see her well, began to make themselves unpleasant. And this example began to be followed by those who were nearer to her. She was not angry or frightened, but progress became more and more difficult, and she looked this way and that for a way of escape.

The door of a mean little house stood wide open. Furniture was being carried out of the house, and there was a middle-aged woman who kept dabbling her eye with her apron.

Celestia made a dart for the open door, the crowd now hooting and threatening, reached it, closed it behind her, and was alone in a narrow hallway with the woman who wept.

"What is the trouble?" she asked gently.

The woman's eyes widened with wonder as she looked upon her chance visitor.

"My husband is sick with a broken arm. We can't pay the rent and the landlord is throwing us out into the street."

"Oh, but he mustn't do that," said Celestia. She was still holding the bills which Mrs. Baxter had given her.

"Where is your husband?"

Almost in a state of coma Mrs. Douglas, for that was the woman's name, led the way into a room from which everything had been taken out but one chair. In this sat a middle-aged patient-looking, blue-eyed man, his right arm in a sling. At his side stood a pretty girl of about the same age as Celestia.

"See," said Celestia, "here is lots of money. A good woman gave it to me. And please will you help me for a little while because I have no place to go, and you look like good people."

Douglas had never seen so much money at one time.

"Who are you, m'm?" he asked.

"Where are you from?"

His eyes were blinking rapidly with awe and wonder.

"I am Celestia. I have come from heaven to help you." He looked into her eyes for a long time. Then suddenly he fell on his knees before her.

A Crowd Collected About Her.

"Before God," he said, "I believe you."

Then as suddenly as he had knelt he rose and hurried from the room, groping with his left hand as if he was blind.

The young girl followed him.

"He's broken down," said Mrs. Douglas in a voice full of tears and awe, "and he don't want you to see him cry. Just excuse me—please—a minute—he's my husband."

And she, too, left the room, and Celestia was alone, but not for long. Her quick ear caught the sound of a stealthy movement.

"You, Freddie," Sweetzer had said. "If you drop eyes on that girl you bring her to me, understand. There's money in it," and he added with a kind of fierce jocosity, "Bring her dead or alive." But Freddie the Ferret had understood only the words, and not the jocosity. So when with his usual bull luck he found the object of his search, right in the parlor of his very own father's house, he cast about for a weapon with which to subdue, or if necessary kill her. There was money in it.

When Celestia turned and saw him, he had in his right hand a heavy table leg, and upon his half-wit face a scowl of the utmost ferocity.

A New Back for an Old One—How a Mount Sterling Resident Made a Bad Back Strong.

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Follow the example of this Mount Sterling citizen.

Mrs. Enoch Bruton, 20 Harrison St., Mt. Sterling, says: "One of my family was in bad shape with kidney trouble and suffered intensely from a lame back. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured at Dner-son's Drug Store and one box gave great relief. I have also used this medicine and it has helped me wonderfully."

OVER THREE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Bruton said: "I gladly confirm all I said about Doan's Kidney Pills before. They are certainly a good kidney medicine."

AGREED THAT MOON HAS NO INFLUENCE ON CROPS

Scientists are now convinced that the moon has no more influence on crops than it has upon the temperature or the amount of rain or the kinds or any other weather element. The growth of plants depends upon the amount of food in the soil and in the air that is available for them and upon temperature, light and moisture. The moon obviously does not effect the character of the soil in any way, neither does it effect the composition of the atmosphere. The only remaining way in which it could influence plant growth, therefore, is by its light. Recent experiments, however, show that full daylight is about 600,000 times brighter than full moonlight, yet when a plant gets 1-100th part of normal daylight it thrives little better than in absolute darkness. If 1-100th part of normal daylight is thus too little to stimulate a plant, it seems quite certain that a 600,000th part cannot have any effect at all. It is therefore a mere waste of time to think about the moon in connection with the planting of crops. The moon, say the scientists, has nothing more to do with this than it has to do with the building of fences, the time for killing hogs, or any other of the innumerable things over which it was once supposed to exert a strong influence.

ACREAGE OF FARM LANDS

The last Federal census shows the total number of farms in the United States to be 6,361,502, containing 878,798,325 acres.

The land in farms represents 46.2 per cent., or less than one-half of the total land area of the country. Of the total acreage given only 478,451,750 acres are classed as "improved land." The balance comprises wood land and other unimproved land in farms. The improved land given above is only about 25.1 per cent. of the total area of the country. The average size of farms, as shown by the last census, is 138.1 acres, of which an average of 75.2 acres are improved, and 62.9 acres unimproved.

AMERICAN DOLLAR IS STANDARD IN WORLD MARKETS

The American dollar became the standard of the world's financial market last week when English pounds, sterling francs, lire and virtually all foreign exchange went down to new depths in an avalanche of bills that poured into the New York exchange markets from American manufacturers seeking pay for their munitions. It developed that every contract in America calls for payment in American dollars, insuring that the immense losses will be borne to the last penny by foreign buyers—not by American manufacturers.

RULER OF ALL

"What More For Woman?" Asks Texas Farmer Chief.

Article of W. D. Lewis Panegyric To Mother's Skirt.

"Why is a woman dissatisfied?" asks W. D. Lewis, president of the Texas Farmers' Union, in an article in a recent issue of The Cresset, of Medicine Lodge, Kan. "Why does she grow restless under the Crown of Womanhood? Why is she weary of the God-given jewel of motherhood? Is it not a sufficient achievement for woman that future rulers nurse at her breast, laugh in her arms and kneel at her feet? Can ambition leap to more glorious heights than to sing lullabies to the world's greatest geniuses, chant melodies to master minds and rock the cradle of human destiny?"

"God pity our country when the handshake of the politician is more grunting to woman's heart than the patter of children's feet."

"Why does woman chafe under restraint of sex? Why revile the hand of nature? Why discard the skirts that civilization has clung to since the beginning of time? Why lay aside this hallowed garment that has wiped the tears of sorrow from the face of childhood? In its sacred embrace every generation has hidden its face in shame; clinging to its motherly folds, tottering children have learned to play hide and seek and from it youth learned to reverence and respect womanhood. Can man think of his mother without this consecrated garment?"

"Why this inordinate thirst for power? Is not woman all powerful? Man cannot enter this world without her consent, he cannot remain in peace without her blessing and, unless she sheds tears of regret over his departure, he has lived in vain. Why this longing for civic power when God has made her ruler over all? Why crave authority when man bows down and worships her? Man has given woman his heart, his name and his money. What more does she want?"

"Can man find it in his heart to look with pride upon the statement that his honorable mother-in-law was one of the most powerful political bosses in the country, that his distinguished grandmother was one of the ablest filibusterers in the Senate, or that his mother was a noted warrior and her name a terror to the enemy? Whither are we drifting and where will we land?"

"I follow the plow for a living and my views may have in them the smell of the soil; my hair is turning white under the frost of many winters and perhaps I am a little old-fashioned, but I believe there is more moral influence in the dress of woman than in all the statute books of the land. As an agent for morality, I wouldn't give my good old mother's home-made gowns for all the suffragette's constitutions and by-laws in the world."

"As a power for purifying society, I wouldn't give one prayer of my saintly mother for all the women's votes in Christendom. As an agency for good government, I wouldn't give the plea of a mother's heart for righteousness for all the oaths of office in the land."

"There is more power in the smile of woman than in an act of Congress. There are greater possibilities for good government in her family of laughing children than in the Cabinet of the President of the United States."

AN AGE OF MACHINE DISEASE

More than 400,000 Americans die annually from affections of the heart and kidneys, the so-called organic diseases. Of these 60,000 deaths occur below the age of forty, and by far the larger part of the victims succumb before old age is due.

These ills are literally machine diseases. In the old days when man earned his bread by the sweat of his brow, only the rich could be inactive enough to develop them. But now vast numbers of people live indoors most of the time; machines take the place of our hands and feet. An expert says:

"This sudden decline in muscular activity reaches from the factory hand to the mechanic who leisurely watches or feeds a machine, to the farmer who rides his sulky plow, to the trainman whose brakes are now set by air, to every branch of business and professional life, where time and labor saving devices are now encouraging physical inactivity. And one of the greatest factors in this change has been cheap telephones and cheap transportation in our cities and towns. To walk a few blocks, to stand a few minutes or to climb a few stairs, overtakes the strength of thousands of healthy looking people."

Let a horse who has been used to hard work and healthy meals suddenly be deprived of exercise and continuing his working diet, and he speedily sickens. His joints stiffen, he gets fat, short-winded and useless. Precisely that thing is happening to many Americans.

Of course we cannot turn from the machine back to hand work and foot transportation. These are here to stay; but we moderns can make shift to use our muscles in other ways. Gymnasium work and gardening are good; systems of exercise multiply by means of which a busy man can crowd into fifteen minutes nearly enough stretching, hauling and bending to offset a day's desk or bench work.

Overweight is the mark of the ill-conditioned man, because surplus weight is usually the mark of hearty feeding and lack of exercise. Usually, but not always, for there be those whose weight is not affected by dieting or physical effort. In their cases nothing except worry will serve to combat fat and the consequent degeneration of the vital organs. Whether slab sides are worth attaining at the price of mental disquiet is a problem worthy the consideration of the sages. Luckily most extra heavy people do not face such a dire dilemma. For nine out of ten fat persons improved health and longevity are attainable by reducing the attention to the pleasures of the table and going in for regular physical exertions, the intensity of which may be turned to the required individual pitch. That so many people die before their time is due largely to the fact that habits of comfort are easier to indulge than ever before.—Lexington Leader.

MRS. DIETZ DEAD

Friends here will learn with sorrow of the death of Mrs. Doreas Dietz, wife of Mr. Adolphus Dietz, which occurred at her home in Lexington last Monday evening. The funeral and burial took place at Lexington. Mrs. Dietz resided here for some years with her husband when he was engaged in constructing the local Government building, but for the past three years had been living in Lexington. Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Otto and Henry Dietz, of Lexington, and Fred Dietz, of Hazard, and a daughter, Miss Agnes, who lived at home. Three brothers and three sisters who live at Rome, Ga., also survive.

A SUGGESTION

We do not know what the Democrats of Montgomery county will do at our county convention next Saturday, nor do we want to assume the role of dictating to them, but as a Democrat, having the best interests of the party at heart, we believe the wise thing to do would be to meet and name all good Democrats of the county as delegates to the State Convention to be held at Louisville next Tuesday.

It promises to be an old-fashioned love feast and to permit any Democrat to go who wants to, would promote harmony as we see it. Personally we doubt if we will be able to attend and are making this suggestion merely for the sake of harmony and party success in November.

The Democratic ticket will win this fall, yet no mistakes ought to be made and the wiser we act in our county conventions Saturday, the more certain will be the final result.

A TICKET WITH STRENGTH

In this issue The News presents the Democratic ticket, made in the recent primary, and we feel that it is a very strong one. With Mr. Stanley at the head—a man of broad experience in the affairs of government, whose ability and courage has been highly valued by his congressional district and our National Congress, no one need fear a draggy administration of the State's business after he has been inaugurated Governor.

His associates on the ticket are men of recognized ability, whose devotion to party and good government is appreciated to no small degree. So far as we are able to ascertain the fitness of each and every nominee adds strength to the hope of good government with progressive ideas. Under such conditions the ticket will undoubtedly receive a hearty endorsement in the regular election in November.—Bourbon News.

SUPPORT THE NOMINEE

Democracy means government by the people—let the will of the people prevail. Of course in any election every Democrat has his choice of individual men, aspirants for office, but when the election is over and the ballots are counted, all true Democrats will abide by the result, and accept it cheerfully as embodying their party's ticket, the choice of the majority. To do otherwise is to court party disaster and defeat. Parties win victories by united action, by yielding personal choice to party supremacy.—Bourbon News.

A man never likes to hear a woman cuss. But what is a woman going to do when she discovers that the laundry has starched all of her gause underwear?

TENNESSEE FOR HIM

The Robertson County News, published at Springfield, Tenn., pays the following tribute to A. O. Stanley, the Democratic nominee for Governor of Kentucky:

"In the primary held in Kentucky Congressman A. O. Stanley, of Henderson, won the Democratic nomination for the governorship by a majority which will go over forty thousand votes. Mr. Stanley has hundreds of friends in Robertson county who were gratified to learn of his victory. The Kentucky Congressman is one of the best friends that the tobacco growers ever had in Congress and when the fight was between the growers and the trust Mr. Stanley spoke all over the 'Black Patch' in behalf of the tobacco growers' organization and as a member of Congress he made a brilliant record in the investigation of the workings of the steel trust."

UGHT TO BE LARGE

It seems generally agreed among Democrats that Mr. Stanley's majority in November will or ought to be about the same over his opponent as it was in the recent primary. And it will be if there are no defections from the ticket. Kentucky is a Democratic State—there is no doubt about that. It has only been when there was a split in the party upon some question that the Republicans have won—not by virtue of the most votes, but clearly the fault of the Democrats themselves. There is no reason for any party division now. A full Democratic vote will win a big victory.—Hartford Herald.

Attention, Democrats.

A convention will be held at the Court House in Mt. Sterling, Ky., on Saturday, August 28, 1915, at 1 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend the State Convention to be held in Louisville, Ky., on August 31, 1915. John A. Judy, Chairman.

ALL FOR STANLEY

From what we can gather every Democrat in Lincoln county will support the splendid ticket nominated some ten days ago. Supporters of Mr. McChesney are disappointed and there is reason why they should be, but they are rallying to the standard like men and will be found in line when the November election comes. Looks like Stanley's plurality in August will be a small thing as compared with his majority in November. And so mote it be.—Stanford Interior-Journal.

VANSANT'S LONG HEAD

We didn't like it a little bit when State Chairman Vansant refused to call the committee together and fix us a platform. On one or two occasions we jabbed him under the fifth rib, but it now appears that the Big Chief knew what he was about. Had he yielded to the strong pressure brought to bear and called a convention, a row and split would most likely have resulted. As it is now everything is lovely. The Big Chief has a long head and is all right.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Write, if you will, write deeply enough, down to the truth of your own soul, below the shams of phrase and convention, below your insincerities of self—and you shall have enemies to your hearts desire!

HARMONY THAT

MEANS SUCCESS

There is nothing that could be more encouraging to Democrats than the spirit of harmony that is spreading through their ranks. By the first of November there will be universal peace among the brethren. That will mean an old-fashioned Democratic majority.—Owensboro Inquirer.

"The destiny of this nation lies in the home and not in the legislative halls. The hearthstone and the family Bible will ever remain the source of our inspiration and the Acts of the Apostles will ever shine brighter than the acts of Congress."

"This country is law-mad. Why add to a statute book, already groaning under its own weight, the hysterical cry of woman? If we never had a chance to vote again in a lifetime and did not pass another law in twenty-five years, we could survive the ordeal, but without home civilization would wither and die."

"God save these United States from becoming a hen-pecked nation; help us keep our sissies out of Congress and forbid that women become stepfathers to Government, is the prayer of the farmers of this country."

FORD CARS

The following statements from users of Ford cars are convincing proof of the merit of this splendid machine.

Capt. C. H. Petry says: "I have used my Ford touring car 29 months at an expense of $9.80 a month, including replacement of tires, oil, gasoline and all repairs." He states from his experience that a five-passenger Ford car can be operated year after year at 2 1-2 cents per mile.

Mr. J. D. Van Atta states he has just completed a 676 mile trip through Northeastern Ohio in his Ford runabout. He reports absolutely no mechanical trouble and not even a puncture, with a gasoline mileage of 35 miles to the gallon.

The Trimble Grocery Co. bought a Ford runabout March 27, 1915. To date their expense for everything has been $34.50, an average of about $6.91 per month. This car has been used over mountain roads and the roughest turnpikes in this locality at an expense of 1.3 cents per mile for a distance of 2,700 miles. Mr. Trimble states that the original tires do not appear to be half worn out.

These are only a few of satisfied purchasers of Ford cars. Ask any of them about the merits of the Ford.

THE BIGGEST INTEREST

A man in another State was once asked which of his several investments paid him the highest rate of interest, and he promptly replied that it was the dollar he paid on his subscription to the local paper.

"One day I wanted to buy a cow," he said, "and was intending to make a trip of about fifteen miles to get one I knew was for sale at a certain price. But just before starting I happened to pick up a local paper and noticed that a nearby neighbor was offering one of the same breed at a dollar less than the other one. He really sold it to me for $4 less. I saved a long thirty mile drive and $4 in cash because I had paid a dollar for the paper."

"That was just one instance, but as a matter of fact I saved both time and money in fifteen or twenty different ways during the year, and all through the adds in the paper that had cost me but a dollar a year. I consider that dollar the best investment I ever made, and I am investing as regularly as the year rolls around, and always with the most satisfactory results."

GIVE ENCOURAGEMENT

Encourage every home enterprise. Take an interest in every industry, invest liberally in the stock of faith and good will, and distribute it all over your city, in every factory, every work shop, every business house. It will pay you large dividends, and will cost very little. It can never depreciate. It will always be above par. Buy home made goods. Ask your merchants for them. Wear home made garments, eat home made articles of food, sleep on home made beds, read home made newspapers. In this way the money you spend is only loaned. It will come back to you again with interest. Praise up your city—don't run it down. Stand by your merchants and manufacturers—they are the bone and sinew of your municipal structure. Stand by your schools and churches—they are the hopes of your future. Stand by your press—it is the tireless sentinel that guards your interests.

NEW HOSPITAL FOR WINCHESTER

Dr. H. R. Henry has leased the second and third floors of the Burch building adjoining the Brown-Proctoria Hotel on West Fairfax street, in Winchester, and is perfecting plans for a private hospital. Work has already begun and the entire second floor will soon be ready to receive patients. On this floor there will be a modern operating room, complete in every detail, two wards and one private room. The third floor will also be used and when fully equipped the hospital will have about twelve beds. There will be a formal opening of the institution near the 1st of September, with dedicatory services, the public will be invited to the service and to inspect the building. Dr. Henry has realized the need of a general hospital in Winchester and has labored earnestly for it, while he has had quite a number of surgical cases in private homes, and has had phenomenal success with every one, yet he loses opportunities daily because of the lack of hospital facilities and this fact has given impetus to the establishment of his own institution. Dr. Henry had several years in hospital service before coming to Winchester to reside, and those who are familiar with his work here have marveled at his success without the proper facilities due a surgeon. A graduate nurse will be in charge of the institution as well as a competent matron.—Winchester Democrat.

Dr. Henry is a son of Mr. J. H. Henry, of this county, and is making quite a success in his chosen profession.

CLIPPINGS FROM THE SNAGTOWN TORCHLIGHT

The Plunkville Patriot has editorially come out against compulsory prohibition.

The Panther Creek school teacher lectured on the United States Friday night. We were surprised to see such a large and intelligent audience out. In the course of his remarks he paid a glowing tribute to our country, and it is a pity that everybody in the United States could not have been there to hear him. One reason we keep so far ahead of other nations, said he, is that we are getting up and going to work on this side every morning while the people around on the other side are just going to bed.

W. C. Herman was seen at the Panther Creek preaching last Sunday. The preacher said some mighty hard things about people. This did not hit W. C. Herman as he has a way of getting down behind his whiskers when he thinks anybody is talking in his direction.

The nights are getting so cold now the jailer at Plunkville will soon have to begin to close the jail doors at night.

Miss Flutie-Twigg has just received a booklet "How to win the Everlasting Affections of Any Man—With a View to Matrimony." She is studying the book thoroughly before trying it out on John Dabner.

The editor of the Patriot at Plunkville wrote a strong editorial for the current issue on "Turn the Rascals Out of Office," but tore it up before it went into the paper, the man he was writing about having come in and subscribed for a year.

The Owensville mail carrier observed a rabbit setting by the roadside just this side of Coon Holler Tuesday morning, and he expected to stop and shoot it upon his return Thursday evening, but it had fled.

The old miser of Musket Ridge is letting the fire die down in his fireplace and warms his feet in the cook stove. The smoke wears out his chimney.

Mrs. Emma Ailen sang several nice songs at the Punkin Center sociable the other night. She was assisted over the big places by Dr. R. T. Cook on his little fiddle.

An acrobat performed at Peavine Ridge Saturday night. It is believed that he struck town broke because when he stood on his head nobody saw any money fall out of his pockets.

In a pistol fight between two men at Coon Holler Saturday evening, Ralph Lyneb got one of the glasses in his spectacles cracked by a glancing bullet. Next time he will leave them at home.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; unless cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Halls Catarrh Cure. Sent for circulars, free.

WHY MILK AND BUTTER ARE SOMETIMES YELLOW

The belief that a bright yellow color in milk means richness in quality is not true. Experiments conducted at the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri show that the change from the white cream and butter in winter to yellow cream and butter in spring and summer does not indicate an increased fat percentage. The very highest colored milk that a cow can give may have the lowest fat percentage. Such a condition is found in the so-called colostrum milk, the first milk that a cow gives after giving birth to a calf.

The explanation of the wide difference between the results of the experiment and the popular belief in regard to the relation of color to richness lies in the cause of the natural yellow color of cream and butter. It was found that cows were not able to produce the yellow coloring matter for their cream and butter. The coloring matter must be derived from the feed. The yellow coloring matter of milk was found to be identical with a yellow coloring matter that is widely distributed in plants and fresh grass.

This coloring matter is called carotin. It takes its name from the carrot, where it is very abundant, and where it was first discovered by scientists more than one hundred years ago.

The difference in the color of cream and butter in winter and spring was found to be due to the fact that the winter feeds contain little or no carotin. No marked increase in the fat percentage accompanies the increase in color when foods rich in carotin are fed. It has been shown that the average cow gives a higher per cent of fat in its milk during the winter than in the spring and summer.

THE REPUBLICAN OUTLOOK

The Republicans will not make their campaign in Kentucky this year with much hope of doing more than to keep the organization together and poll a good vote. The Democratic nominations have been suitable and the Democrats should carry the State by an old-fashioned majority, but every Democratic voter should stay awake and be at work to make the victory a sweeping one.—Frankfort State Journal.

NOW HUSTLE

The Democrats must now quit shouting over the results of the primary—and those whose choice lost must quit kicking—and hustle to heap up a Democratic majority in the general election. The Republicans can win in Kentucky only by getting Democrats to help them—that is to say, voters who label themselves Democrats, but who vote for another party if candidates chosen by them are not nominated. The Republicans now are congratulating themselves upon the beat with which the issues of the pre-primary period were debated. It is now time to begin to forget differences which seemed large before the primary and get every voter in line for the battle that is to be fought.

It does not profit anyone to over-estimate strength. It should be demonstrated and not boasted. Help to make the demonstration convincing.—Frankfort State Journal.

SENSATIONAL AND STUPENDOUS HIPPODROME SHOW

Greatest Acts of Vaudeville and Circus Booked For the Kentucky State Fair, Sept. 13-18

FLAMED by the grand and lofty dome of the $100,000 Pavilion, there will be offered each evening, beginning at 7:30, at the Kentucky State Fair an aggregation of festive acts which are destined to constitute one of the greatest entertainments of the kind ever offered at a State Fair.

Secretary Bond has sent every energy toward securing those which will provide a vivid content and a decided sensation, and the show as a whole will live up to the billing of Hippodrome.

Supreme among the better attractions listed under Grand Louisville Exposition act, in which Lowandes and his beautiful girl partner perform amazing backward stunts and balletic feats. The act is splendidly staged and contained and adds to the marvels of acrobatic and acrobatic art in its picturesque and pleasing to the eye as well as to the ear.

Pheasant, Duck, Goose and Deer

New Feature For Kentucky State Fair

A WONDERFUL, instructive and interesting exhibition planned as a new feature for the Kentucky State Fair will be the showing of every variety of pheasant, duck, goose and deer native to this country. The State Fair management has appropriated special grounds for the pens and cages in which the millions of a wonderful zoo is to be introduced during the celebration of Sept. 13-18, and in fact, the specimens of pheasant already secured by the fair management under the auspices and direction of the State Fair and Game Commission place Kentucky's collection second only to the largest in the world, which is a part of the zoo at Rossmore, N. Y.

The State Fair and Game Commission is making every effort to replenish the almost entirely depleted stock of pheasants in Kentucky and has recently imported from England large flocks of brooders, which have been placed throughout the state. Special precautions have been taken for the protection of the birds and farmers in whose land the pheasants have been released have been feeling them regularly and report that they have become quite tame. Quail will also be included in the importation of birds and flocks will be brought into the state from Mexico. This variety of quail is native to Kentucky, but Mexico is the only place where the birds can be secured for restocking.

Two thousand two hundred pairs of English ring neck pheasants were imported to Kentucky recently, and a large number of Pines of White pheasants were placed in the lowlands of the Purchase, to which section they are especially adapted. Several pheasants have been sent in large quantities to the mountains and variegated pheasants to the interior sections of the state.

All of these and every other existing variety of pheasant will be exhibited in the State Fair collection, as will the Japanese, English fallow and native American deer.

Special cut into sections will be run from Louisville over all time and from all parts of the state during the Kentucky State Fair week, Sept. 13-18.

Compan tickets of the day tickets at $2 and the state tickets at $1 for the Kentucky State Fair, Sept. 13-18, will be on sale Aug. 15 until Sept. 12.

SOME REASONS FOR BUILDING A SILO NOW

The silo preserves a safe place to store corn that is overtaken by frost when in the milk stage. The crop will then make a fairly good quality of silage if it is put into the silo at once.

The silo furnishes abundant, palatable food of uniform quality, that is always near at hand.

The silo preserves the corn crop with the minimum amount of loss, as the entire plant is made fit for food.

The silo doubles the number of dairy or beef animals that can be kept on a farm.

The silo economizes space, time, and building costs in providing storage room for the crop.

The silo equalizes the supply of food, by carrying a surplus over, in good condition, from one year to another.

The silo can be used for storing clover or alfalfa during a spell of wet weather, when it would be impossible to cure it for hay.

The silo furnishes the most economical, convenient food for supplying almost all pastures during a period of drought.

Stoops.

(By B. M. Goodan)

The past week was a pretty severe one on ripe tobacco.

Indications are that the corn crop will be the best ever grown in this part of the country.

Mrs. Hood Thompson and little daughter, of Salt Lick, are visiting relatives here.

It is the general belief that every boy and his girl within a radius of 40 miles passed through Stoops
Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Raymond Johnson, of Terre Haute, Ind., came Saturday to visit her parents, John C. Trimble and wife.

Elder Robt. Bailey, of Owingsville, has closed a very successful meeting at Tunnel Hill school house, near Flat Creek. There were 32 additions to the church.

Clarence Sanders and wife have returned from a visit to relatives in Fleming county.

Because a candidate is in favor of "good roads," is no sign that he won't have a "rough road to travel."

A large crowd is expected to hear Dr. E. O. Guerrant preach at Springfield Sunday morning.

An immense crowd attended the baptizing at Hickston Bridge Sunday afternoon. Twenty-two were baptized by Rev. Horace Kingsbury.

Mrs. Luey A. Smathers and Mrs.
Lida Mark will move to Lexington this week where they will reside until the school term is over next spring.

Saturday was such a day that our citizens donned overcoats and made old-fashioned fires, thinking that a snow storm was just "over the fence."

Sherman Hamilton who is at the Good Samaritan Hospital in Lexington, will be recovered sufficiently to return home the latter part of this week.

In one of the most exciting games ever seen on the local diamond, the Stoops ball team defeated the Levee team Sunday afternoon by the score of 9 to 8, the contest going 11 innings. The batteries were, for Levee, Barnard and McDonald; for Stoops, Still, Johnson and Crook-ett. The Levee team is composed of a fine set of boys and the Stoops fans hope they will win all the games they play, except, of course, when they play Stoops.

ADVISES AGAINST FODDER PULLING

One of the most costly mistakes of Southern farmers is fodder-pulling. Pulling fodder not only reduces the yield of corn but also seriously injures the vitality of the seed for the following year, according to South Carolina Experiment Station, at Clemson College.
Experiments conducted in Durlington county, S. D., proved that when fodder was pulled when the bottom leaves began to turn, there was a loss of at least 24 per cent in yield of corn. If pulled when three-fourths of the leaves were dry, the decrease in yield was about 10 per cent.

But this is not the only loss from fodder-pulling. Pulling fodder has a serious effect upon the next year's crop by lowering the vitality of the seed produced on stalks from which fodder is pulled. By pulling fodder, therefore, a man not only loses on his current crop, but also damages his chances of producing a good crop the following year.

Farmers of the South have awakened to the great waste involved in fodder-pulling, and are more generally taking up other methods of saving the corn stover after the corn has matured and has been gathered into shock.

AS TO FALLING IN LOVE.

THERE ARE SO MANY, MANY WAYS OF DOING IT.

And So Great a Number Find When Too Late They Have Never Had the True Experience, Having Misaken Symptoms.

Now of course there is no difficulty about falling in love. Anyone can do that. The difficulty is to know when the symptoms are true or false, says a Pittsburgh Post writer. So many people mistake the symptoms, and only discover when it is too late that they have never really had the true experience. Hence the importance of "calf love," which serves as a sort of apprenticeship to the mystery and enables you to discriminate between the substance and the shadows.

People laugh at "calf love," but one might as well laugh at the wonder of dawn or the coming of spring. When David Copperfield fell in love with the eldest Miss Larkins he was really in love with the opening universe, and the eldest Miss Larkins happened to be the only available Lightning conductor for his emotion.

The important thing is that you should contract "calf love" while you are young. It is like the measles, which is harmless enough in childhood but apt to be dangerous when you are grown up. The "calf love" of an elderly man is always a disaster.
Hence the saying, "There is no fool like an old fool." An elderly man should not fall in love. He should walk right into it. He should survey the ground carefully, as Mr. Marks did.

The mistake of "the northern farmer" was that he applied the same middle aged caution to youth. "Don't you marry for munny, but go wheer munny is," he said to his son Sammy who wanted to marry the poor parson's daughter.

There is no harm, of course, in marrying money. George Borrow said that there were worse ways of making a fortune than marrying one. And perhaps it is true, though I don't think Borrow's experience was very convincing. I have known people who "have gone where money was" and have fallen honestly and rapturously in love, but you have to be very sure that money in such a case is not the motive. If it is, the penalty never fails to follow.

Those who believe in "love at first sight" take the view that marriages are made in Heaven and that we only come to earth to fulfill our destiny.
Johnson, who was an excellent husband to the elderly Mrs. Porter, spoke with that view and held that love was only the accident of circumstance, but though that is a sensible view, there are cases like those of Dante and Beatrice and Abelard and Heloise, in which the passion doesn't seem to touch the skies. In those cases, however, it rarely ends happily.

A more humdrum way of falling in love seems better fitted for earthly conditions. The method of Sir Thomas More was perhaps the most un-romantic on record. He preferred the younger of two sisters and was about to marry her when it occurred to him that it would be very unpleasant for the elder sister to see her junior married before herself. Thereupon he proposed to the elder and married her, and as far as I can remember the experiment was thoroughly satisfactory.

Children Who Are Afraid at Night.
Writing of "Night Terrors," so common among children, Dr. Adolph Stern says in the New York Medical Journal that these have a deeper cause than those given in the text books, which are: Adenoids and enlarged tonsils, large or indigestible meals eaten shortly before going to bed, and the telling of harrowing or terrifying stories—like ghost stories.

According to Doctor Stern, children who sit up screaming "Mother, mother!" "The black man!" "The ghost!" or even those who constantly cry for a drink of water, are generally the offspring of neurotic mothers who have themselves been made neurotic by receiving too much attention, too much emotional affection, by being kept too dependent, not leaning on themselves but on others.

The cure for such children is to make them play with other children, to let them do things for themselves, such as dressing and bathing themselves and going to bed alone. Thus they will acquire a spirit of independence.

Daylight Saving in Canada.
Considerable attention is being given throughout Canada to a so-called daylight-saving scheme. The movement in Halifax is in accord with an effort all over the dominion to have the clock put back one hour on April 1 each year, continuing to some autumn month, in order to give more daylight for work and pleasure. Meetings are being held all over Canada with a view to bringing the matter to the attention of the federal parliament at its next session. The Halifax committee is composed of representatives of the city council, trades and labor council and wholesale and retail merchants.—Commerce Reports.

Disastrous Famines.
The worst famines of modern times were the famine in Ireland in 1846-7, in which 1,000,000 people perished; the Indian famine in 1866, which claimed 1,450,000 victims; the Indian famine in 1877, in which 500,000 people perished, and the great famine in China in 1878, in which 9,500,000 perished.

GOOD MAN DIES

—Mr. John C. M. Day, one of Winchester's most prominent citizens, and widely known throughout the State through his connections with important railroad, coal and timber interests of Eastern Kentucky, died last Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock following a long illness from Bright's disease.

Mr. Day is survived by his wife, who was Miss McLin, of Hazel Green, before her marriage and connected with a prominent family.
Also four children survive, William,
Kelly, Mary and Katherine Day, all of Winchester. He is also survived by three brothers and one sister;
Mr. Floyd Day, of Winchester; J.
Taylor Day, of Hazel Green; Squire William Day, of Breathitt county, and Mrs. Lou Ellen Hargis, of Breathitt. Another brother, the late Judge Nathan Day, was well known over the State, being a resident of Breathitt.

Mr. Day was 58 years of age and was one of the foremost men in the development of the timber and mineral interests of Eastern Kentucky.

MISS JESSIE HUGHES TO WED

Hughes, and Mr. J. A. Allen, of Fairfield, will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hagan, in Winchester Wednesday, Sept. 1st, at 3:30 o'clock p. m. After the nuptials the young people will leave for a bridal tour and will later reside near Bardstown. Miss Hughes formerly lived in this county where she is well known and popular. The young couple have the best wishes of many friends of the bride-to-be in this county.

THE TABB THEATRE
Friday and Saturday nights. Mrs.
Acosta is well known in this city and comes to
THE TABB THEATRE
as having but few equals.

We are agents for the Carlsbad Springs Co., Dry Ridge, Ky., and have the water fresh.

GOOD WOMAN DEAD

Mrs. Sue Hardman, wife of Mr.
James Hardman, died at their home in this county late last Tuesday evening, aged 75 years. She was a good, Christian woman and was born and spent her entire life in the neighborhood in which she died.
She is survived by her husband and two brothers, Mr. Thomas Moore, of Clark county, and Mr. Geo. Moore, of Fayette county.

Funeral services were conducted at the residence with burial in the family burying ground near Wade's Mill.

DIES FROM INJURIES

It is reported that Mr. Thomas Biggers, who formerly lived in this city and who fell from the scaffolding while painting the Union Station at Lexington last Thursday, died from his injuries.

Mr. Biggers has many friends here who will regret to learn of his death.

DAMAGED BY FLOODS

Millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed last week at Galveston and many lives lost in the terrible flood that visited that section. At St. Louis, Mo., severe damage was done to property and fifteen people reported drowned.

GET READY

County Assessor James T. Barnes will begin the task of assessing the property of Montgomery county on September first and desires all taxpayers to be ready to furnish the necessary information.

There is nothing that will do you so much good as nature's great remedy—Carlsbad Spring Water for rheumatism, kidney, bladder, liver, bright's disease, catarrh of the nose and bowels, bowel troubles and many female troubles. For sale at Greenwade's Store.

Joy is lyrical. The workman who sings at his bench is doing his work well. Life in those rare moments when our best desires have been fulfilled, our fevers of unrest allayed, seems, in the phrase of a noble writer, "One grand sweet song."

Everything fresh in canned goods.
Sanitary Meat Market.

Link and bulk sausage—best in the city at Greenwade's.

PROGRAM FOR The TABB Theatre

Wednesday, Aug. 25th.—"The Island of Regeneration," a V.
L. S. E. production of the romance by Cyrus Townsend Brady, featuring Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno.

Thursday, Aug. 26th.—"The Romance of Elaine," and the Mutual Master Piece, featuring Lillian Gish and Wallace Reid in the dramatization of Tennyson's immortal poem, "Enoch Arden."

Friday, Aug. 27th.—Mutual Masterpiece "The Girl From His Town," starring Margarita Fisher, and "The Diamond From the Sky."

Realizing that the picture going public knows the merits of the producers of these pictures we deem it unnecessary to say any more except that "THE ISLAND OF REGENERATION" has the reputation of being one of the finest productions of the V. L. S. E.

You will find our books containing 15 tickets for $1.00 quite convenient and already quite popular
